

FRESH AND FROZEN WHITEFISH

Fresh fish in the form of fillets and pieces now represents one of Iceland's main export products. Our fishermen are aware of the importance of treating the catch well and thus preserving the freshness and quality of the raw material before it reaches land. The objective in the factories is to process tailor-made products for our customers and to fast-track them onto the market. This is how we guarantee that consumers can be confident that our products are as good as they get. With the right fishing management and an excellent distribution network from Iceland we can offer secure delivery to markets in Europe and North America.
